

Madison 'dumps' Pashoff

By Andy Siering
Staff writer

MADISON — In a hastily called meeting Wednesday night, the executive board of the Madison city political organization "dumped" Christ Pashoff, Venice Township supervisor, for the last 16 years.

Enacted instead for supervisor in the April election was Richard Paterson, a township trustee.

Madison traditionally gets to pick the supervisor, the tax collector and two of the four trustees, while the Venice organization picks the clerk, the assessor and the other two trustees, members of the groups have said. The resulting slate usually prevails in the townshipwide voting.

C.S. "Casey" Krakowicki was endorsed for another term as tax collector, and Joseph Asperger was endorsed for Paterson's trustee seat.

A Madison alderman, Ron Grzywacz, who plans to run for mayor, said Mayor John Bellcoff informed him of the 7 p.m. meeting at 5 p.m. Grzywacz alleged the Pashoff ouster was Bellcoff's idea and said Bellcoff had declined to elaborate.

Pashoff made an impassioned 40-minute speech and left before the vote, a source said.

Bellcoff said some of the candidates had asked for a meeting, so he called it.

He declined to comment on why Pashoff was not endorsed, other than to say that the organization felt Paterson's candidacy would lend strength to the ticket.

Pashoff said he had no inkling that the action was coming. "Bellcoff double-crossed me," he said Friday.

Pashoff also blamed Venice Mayor Tyrone Echols, whom he said may resent him for attacking the trustees he had done, but he declined to elaborate.

Pashoff made an impassioned 40-minute speech and left before the vote, a source said.

He told them about the three-and-a-half million dollars I've gotten for Madison and Venice," Pashoff said. "I've given so much to the people."

The Venice city organization has not yet endorsed candidates for township positions.

New county officers bring changes

By Dennis Grubaugh
Managing editor

EDWARDSVILLE — Potentially signaling a new generation of leadership in county government, three new faces were among those sworn in this week in the county seat.

All three have had long ties to county government, however.

William Haine, 41, of Alton, became the new state's attorney after defeating incumbent Dick Allen of Granite City in last spring's primary. Haine resigned both his county board seat and chairmanship of the Madison County Transit District to take over as the county's chief legal officer.

Already he has made a series of changes aimed at both improving the service of the office and staying in touch with the budget.

"It's been real interesting. I'm up to my neck in alligators, but I like it," Haine said Friday. "I think we have done very well in our first 48 hours just keeping afloat."

Haine said he has his assistants on line and is anxious to get into court.

"We've got a couple of trials coming up and I'm looking forward to getting this thing back on track."

Haine said he would attempt to reverse the motion by Allen on his last day in office to withdraw the request for the death penalty in the case of Girves Davis, currently on trial for the murder of a Maryville-area woman.

"I think that's my prerogative, just as it was Dick Allen's to withdraw the request," Haine said. "But I think there is no hope of changing the plea bargain he made. I think those are

MESD won't challenge ballot

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Although Centerville Mayor Riley Owens wants him to, Shang Greathouse, Metro East Sanitary District director, said he will not challenge the November ballot.

At issue is the possibility that voters in Centerville's 1st Ward who do not live in the Metro East Sanitary District voted on the MESD tax rate referendum. Owens reported that a city worker, who doesn't live in the district, voted on the referendum.

The rate increase lost by 1,200 votes.

"I looked real close," Greathouse said. "But you can't pick up 1,200 votes in one ward. That 1st Ward is a mix of residential and business. I looked at the numbers and they were all real close, so even if it were thrown out it wouldn't make any difference."

"... I'm convinced that the election was legitimate. I wish I wasn't."

"I wish I could believe I had grounds for a challenge. But I don't. I've gone over all the information."

ETC may occupy Louis Baer next year

MADISON — Louis Baer School may well have tenants next year. If the public is as pleased with the idea as both the Madison School District and officials of the Educational Therapy Center,

Proposed use of the former elementary school by the center is in the earliest of planning stages.

Superintendent Dan Kostenski reported to the board at Thursday night's meeting that he had taken E.T.C. Director David Burkhethomas on a tour of the school early last week.

"They seemed ecstatic, particularly Mr. Burkhethomas, with the possibility of utilizing the facility," Kostenski said.

Now occupying a wing of the former Lake School in Granite City, the E.T.C. is planning ahead should District 9 need the space next year due to the declining enrollment of Webster Elementary School.

Sounds of Christmas

Salvation Army volunteer bell ringers are stationed with the familiar red kites at financial institutions, grocery stores and other locations in the Quad City area through Dec. 23. Donations to the annual Tree of Lights drive help more than 1,300 local needy families enjoy the Christmas season.

U.S. MAIL DETOURED: Metal containers loaded with mail shifted inside this truck causing it to overturn and slide nearly 280 feet. The accident took place about 125 feet of guard rail on Illinois 111 at 3:40 p.m. Thursday. Robert Galiday, 41, was driving down the Interstate 270 exit ramp leading to the southbound lanes of 111 when the accident occurred. Rescue workers from the Mitchell and Long Lake Volunteer fire departments extricated Galiday, who was trapped inside the cab. He sustained cuts and abrasions to the head and legs and was taken by Campbell Ambulance to St. Elizabeth Medical Center, where he was admitted.

Combined effort paid off for United Way campaign

The people and industries of the Quad City area raised $805,000 for the fall 1988 United Way campaign.

The receipts will help support the 1989 operating costs of member agencies.

It took the combined efforts of individuals, industry, business and labor working together toward the common goal of Judy White of the Tri-Cities Area United Way. That goal was to secure support for 22 area health and human service agencies serving the people of this community.

White said one of the lesser known aspects of a United Way campaign is the many people who support the United Way at work through payroll deduction. About 60 percent of the total money pledged is from employee giving at the workplace.

"This is accomplished by the willingness of employers to offer payroll deduction to their employees, and then the willingness of employees to take an active part in meeting the needs of the community," she said.

"Oftentimes, workplace meetings are held to explain the purpose and goals of the United Way. Giving is voluntary and each employer participates in planning the presentation to his employees."

Illinois Power Co. was one of the most successful United Way employee campaigns for 1988. A joint effort made by labor and management resulted in a 25 percent increase in United Way contributions. A team of five employees visited and toured United Way agencies and them shared what they observed with fellow employees at group meetings.

More than $10,000 was contributed and 96 percent of Illinois Power employees in this area are participating in giving through payroll deductions.

"Learning about the agencies and realizing the need made our committee want to do all we could for the United Way," said Karen Straub, a team coordinator.

The employees of Illinois Power are an example of the thousands of people and hundreds of local firms who support their community in an active and positive way.

Weight loss program set

A "new you" for the New Year is the theme of the upcoming Optifast Program at St. Elizabeth Medical Center.

Optifast, offered through St. Elizabeth Medical Center, is a multi-disciplinary treatment approach for patients who are more than 50 pounds, or at least 30 percent over ideal body weight. The program combines medical supervision, a modified fast, behavioral modification, nutrition education, group sessions and exercise.

K mart clerk, customer charged

GRANITE CITY — A scam-style operation in which a checker at the K mart store allegedly tallied considerably less money for purchases resulted in two women being sent to the Madison County Jail at Edwardsville on Tuesday.

Security guards at K mart, 3655 Nameoki Road, reported seeing a patron go through the checkout lane where the cash register was operated by Sandra Kay Dunn of St. Louis.

Dunn, 37, allegedly charged $19.57 for merchandise later found to total $209.62.

Dunn and the customer, Shari Ann Capela, 20, of the 4000 block of Kirkpatrick Homes, were arrested at 1:30 p.m. Nov. 25 and booked for theft.

Among the items allegedly not paid for were an electric drill, worth $55, a coat, worth $28, and a sweat suit, worth $19.

Felony informations alleging retail theft were issued Tuesday through the Madison County State's Attorney's Office and Dunn and Capela appeared in the Granite City Court.

Bail for each woman was set at $502.

Seniors combine birthday, Thanksgiving

The annual Thanksgiving dinner for Chouteau Township Senior Citizens took on a special tone when member Delores Scott decided to sponsor the dinner in honor of the 30th birthday of her home town.

The hall was decorated with burgundy and rose colors. Vases filled with flowers were placed on the tables, covered with white tablecloths. Each place setting was with favors and a champagne glass filled with cranberry juice cocktail.

Scott and all other members who celebrated November birthdays gathered at the head table, where each was pinned with a corsage or boutonniere, compliments of Mrs. Scott.

Mrs. Scott proposed a toast to her husband, and the 87 guests raised their glasses in his honor.

The guests were treated to a turkey dinner with all the trimmings, followed by cake and ice cream.

The Night Hawks Band from Keokuk, Ia., provided the musical entertainment.

Special guests included Paul and Velma Schlesser, old friends of the Scotts, from Dayton, Ohio.

A meeting scheduled for Nov. 15 by the planners of a park on Chouteau Township property at 1000 N. Corporate Drive was canceled due to inclement weather. It will be rescheduled, a spokesman said.

Several residents have spearheaded a drive to create a park on the cleared portion of the 6.4 acre parcel.

The park plans have been approved by the township board.

The project does not involve a tax increase.

The park would include a nature trail around the cleared area. Plans call for keeping the wild flowers and shrubs on the outer perimeter, where bird feeders and a bird bath will be placed. Boxes would encircle a gazebo flanked by roses. A goldfish pond and a bridge over the pond to the gazebo are planned. Plans also include a playground for small children.

The meeting is being called to measure the interest of the community. If community residents show a high level of interest then the project would proceed.

Storyteller Bobby Norfolk presented a program to Mitchell School students Nov. 7 that included "The Bremen Town Musicians," "Kwaku Ananse and the Whipping Cord" and "The Old Woman with the Golden Eggs."

Norfolk, the host of "Gator Tales" on KMVO-TV Channel 4, is a featured performer at national storytelling festivals. He is artistic director of Fantasy Productions, the KMVO radio host for storytelling, and he serves as host of "Children's Theatre at Bobbi's House" on City Cable TV.

Norfolk has been a professional storyteller for nine years. His visit here was sponsored by the Mitchell School PTA.

Kelly Akers, Clint Griggs and Kim McNall, all sixth-graders, were selected as "Students of the Week" by learning center instructor Terry Lignoul.

Allen ends term under attack but upbeat and unapologetic

By John D. Milazzo

MARYVILLE — Dick Allen was at it Wednesday as he greeted friends, workers and political allies at a party he hosted on his last day as Madison County state's attorney.

Allen said he is looking forward to a new career in private practice in Granite City and more active involvement in politics. "I'm sure I'll be getting involved in the primaries for countywide office in another two years," he said.

Allen rejected speculation that he might be interested in a judgeship: "Those people aren't supposed to be involved with politics. I didn't want a job where I was reduced to being a political eunuch."

Allen, who lost his bid for re-election to the office in the March primary to Bill Haine of Alton, has been at the center of heated controversy during his last weeks in office.

Haine, a former county board member and until Nov. 29 chairman of the Madison County Trans-District, was sworn in Wednesday morning.

At the party in Maryville, in the basement banquet room of Tony's Restaurant, Allen expressed a conciliatory viewpoint on his election loss and political maneuvering behind the scenes. He explained his reasons for recommending reduced sentences in several criminal cases in Madison County.

On the primary loss: "Everyone had an ego and in an election you'd always prefer to win to losing, but I bear no ill will against anyone," Allen said.

Specifically, he said he has no hard feelings against either Haine or Democratic County Deputies Committee Chairman Mike Warfield of Granite City, who Allen has said he considers instrumental in his loss. Warfield was ineligible to run for a new term as post chairman after he was defeated for committeeeman in his own precinct in the March primary.

Allen said he believes Warfield threw his support to Haine in the party's slating early this year as a means of getting political support from Democrats in the northern end of the county to assure Warfield a new term as chairman.

Alleged Peeping Tom patrolman pleads guilty to reduced charge

GRANITE CITY — A former policeman accused of being a Peeping Tom on duty had his day in court Wednesday.

Originally charged with a felony count of official misconduct, Scott Jenkins, 26, pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor charge of disorderly conduct and was fined $200 and placed on six months probation.

Jenkins, who maintained his innocence, resigned from the police force in June, shortly before the public start of a hearing on departmental charges. At the time he said he couldn't financially afford the long process it would take to clear his name.

Jenkins had been a policeman three years.

He said Friday his guilty plea was part of a bargain to reduce

"I never supported him either as chairman or when he ran for mayor (of Granite City). I've never been a foot soldier for the (party) organization. So it came as no surprise that he didn't call for my resignation," he said.

At the farewell party, Allen spent time conferring with friends on his plans to actively work for the re-election of Granite City Mayor Von Des Cruse in the April municipal election.

The only other candidate who has so far taken on nominating petitions for mayor has been Warfield, an unsuccessful candidate for the office in a three-way race four years ago.

Then, commenting on the controversy created over his court maneuverings in the past several weeks, Allen cited his personal philosophy on capital punishment and on severe penalties in general:

"Alton police had become so concerned over recent actions by Alton authorities that when in their administration an Alton police officer was posted at the courthouse in Edwardsville in an attempt to advise crime victims of any plea-bargaining activities on Alton's part."

"I think the matter is now moot," Alton Assistant Police Chief James Casper said Thursday, "although we did have some concern over the status of some of our cases."

Casper said Alton authorities were angered by recent Allen motions dismissing felony charges against Alton junior high school teacher Lester Mann, accused of sexual molestation of 13 young girl students.

"Our main concern was that the victims in these crimes and their parents at least be notified that there was a plea-bargaining going on and not to let that out from the media," Casper said.

Allen also intervened in the October sentencing of Theron Smith of Alton, who had been convicted of murdering a retarded couple. In that instance Allen attempted to have the state's request for the death penalty withdrawn.

Finally, on Tuesday Alton moved in motion in the retrial of Girard Davis, 21, who served seven years ago of a Maryville-area woman, stipulating that the death sentence would not be sought.

SOUTH ROXANA — Jason Robertson's wish to be just another schoolboy has come true.

He has a school. He has a teacher. He has friends and 22 classmates. Jason, 8, also has the virus that causes acquired immunodeficiency syndrome.

Jason was exposed to the AIDS virus from tainted blood products used to treat his hemophilia. Because of that, schools in his hometown of Granite City assigned him to a separate classroom. Later, he joined a regular class in Granite City.

After a stay in Missouri, his family moved to South Roxana this summer and Jason began attending classes this fall.

He protested at first, life and school have gone well in South Roxana, said Jason's mother, Tammy Robertson.

Jason had refused to go to school in Granite City while he had a cast on his leg. He was afraid of looking different.

"He said he wasn't going to go because he said it would just make mean people even meaner. Here, he doesn't even think about it," Robertson said.

Jason has been in a wheelchair a few times at South Roxana. He also has worn a shoulder cast to school, but the children accept it without mind his situation, she said. A group of children sympathetic to him also had formed when he was at Prather School in Granite City.

Jason loves school — he has missed just two days since enrolling this fall — said Earline Medcalf, his current teacher.

"He radiates pleasure each time he walks in," Medcalf said. "Jason is a good student and loves math."

"Jason's goal has been to be a good child. I think he's doing fine. His stamina has improved, and he loves to be around other children," she said.

The person nearest to Jason at school is Sharon Waters, a teacher aide and registered nurse hired for Medcalf's room.

"Mrs. Waters and Jason have developed a very special relationship. She knows when he is not feeling well. That enables me at times without speaking," said Principal Dorothy Stuckles.

Waters assists with other classroom duties, but her main concern is Jason.

"I don't think anyone can spend the time I have with Jason and not share some of what he feels," Waters said.

"He has had very few problems. I think that is because he is so happy. He is around other children. He runs, he plays, he reacts normally," Waters said.

Tammy Robertson is pleased with the support shown her son by the school and the community, but said she still misses Granite City.

Good times ahead for Lady Warriors

It might seem strange to say the Lady Warrior basketball team could be ready to make a big move upward. They are, though, 0-2.

But based on their performance Wednesday in Edwardsville, there is reason to hope for bigger and better things for John L. Lewis' team.

Games against the Tigers in recent years were "nightmares," according to Hutchings. The bad dreams were mostly due to the brilliance of Amy Nelson, the Tigers' version of Freddy Krueger.

But Nelson is at Southwest Missouri State now. Edwardsville certainly isn't as strong without her, but a winning tradition feeds on itself and the Tigers were sure up for a early-season test. The Lady Warriors responded by standing face-to-face with the Tigers in the gym for 33 minutes before falling short, 37-36.

On a couple of occasions when it appeared Edwardsville might take control, Granite City bounced back. And unlike last season, when it was Jennifer Cavanes or Kim Pawlak taking the big bucket, 99 percent of the time, the Lady Warriors got help from all five starters.

"All of our starters can contribute offensively for us," said Hutchings.

Pawlak did take control of the offense in the second half, bringing the ball upcourt for jumps and driving layups. And Cavanes got some nice big rebounds. But there was significant help for that dynamic duo. Michelle Bequette helped the 6-4 Cavanes on the boards. And Lenzi Farnette, a couple of big baskets and steals, Priscilla Meyenburg showed she can augment Pawlak's outside shooting with some of her own.

We really missed Priscilla yesterday," said Hutchings, adding of Tuesday's season-opening loss at Memorial Gymnasium. "She's our sparkplug."

Meyenburg suffered a cut on her forehead in the first quarter Tuesday and sat out the rest of the night without scoring. She gutted it out Wednesday — although she was out for a short time when she got another knock on the head — and scored 10 points.

Foul trouble eventually caught up with Granite City. Bequette fouled out with less than two more left in the game. The Warriors still ahead. And Granite City had to foul senior Jamie Schewar, the Tigers' best free-throw shooter. She was 4 for 4 from the line in the final minute for the win.

The Lady Warriors will win some games this year, probably starting tomorrow at home against East St. Louis Assumption. But they'll be better by thinking the best thing about this year's team is next year's potential.

There are no seniors. Lenzi is a sophomore and the other four starters are juniors. There are also some good sophomores and two freshmen, Karen Sykes and

Warriors move over .500 with OT win

By Gary King
Staff writer

ST. JACOB — The exorcism finally won the flood. The riverball Warriors, a little train of a team that last year couldn't, finally did.

The Warriors went a long way toward erasing any residue from their 4-2 campaign of last year by squeezing out a crucial 42-48 overtime win over the Triad Knights on Friday.

Depending on your point of view, Friday's Warrior victory could be described as either Twice Won, the Win That Nearly Got Lost, or a simple case of never missing the water until the streams dry. Take your pick, they all mean the same.

Leading 64-55 with a minute remaining in regulation time, the Warriors (3-2) went on cruise control. Triad (0-4) responded by laying the pedal to the medal, closing with a pair of three-pointers in a 14-second span to draw within three. On a pair of Kory Burton free throws with 36 seconds left, Granite City went back up by five and appeared to be back on Easy Street.

But when Triad's Brian Loehring drilled another three-pointer with 31 seconds left and the Warriors responded by hitting a pair of free-throw opportunities, Easy Street began to resemble something off of Nightmare on Elm Street.

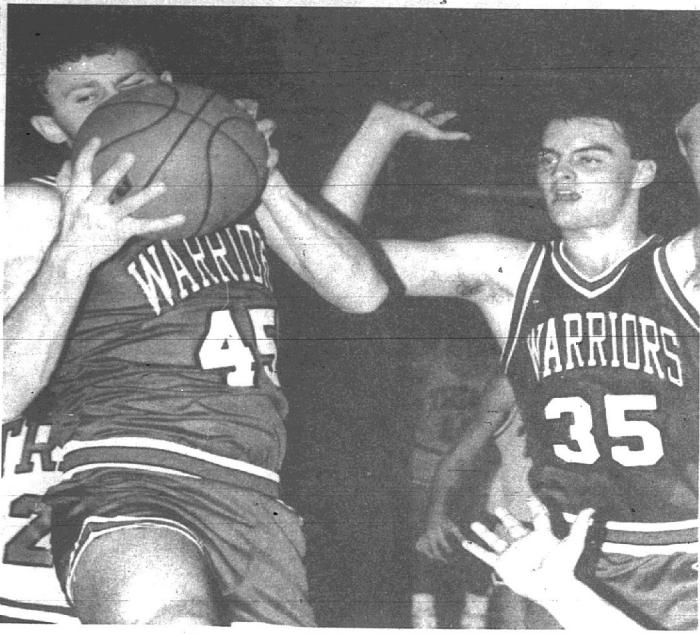

And with three seconds left, the Knights' Todd Pritchett made Granite City's mini-horror flick complete by laying in an errant shot by teammate Don Eddy to send the game into overtime, 66-64.

But the Triad offensive machine simply ran out of gas in overtime as Granite City rattled off a 6-2 spurt in the extra period to sneak away with the win.

Area talent to face nation's best in 7UP/KMOX Shootout

By Curtis Duncan Jr.
Staff writer

ST. LOUIS — Area basketball fans will definitely get their fill of high school hoops on Dec. 9 at the 8th annual 7UP/KMOX Shootout.

Wednesday's press conference at the Marriott was filled with pats on the back by the coaches of each team as they played up their opponents while downplaying the team's success.

East St. Louis Lincoln (28-4 last year, 3-0 this year) will take on Louisville's Roc Hill in the last matchup at 9:45 p.m. It could be matter of saving the best for last.

Lincoln will enter the tournament after playing in the Cincinnati Shootout this weekend. The Tigers won the Roch Island Tournament and picked up junior forward Cuonzo Martin scored at least 30 points in each of the Tigers' three victories.

Tiger coach Bennie Lewis said his team, two-time defending Illinois Class 3A champion, will play tough defensively with a diamond-and-one press and they will run the fast break on Ballard.

"We'll run the diamond-and-one and try to force some turnovers as well running a fast-paced offense," said Lewis, who has a 345-101 record in 16 seasons at Lincoln.

The Tigers will have also have to be ready a way to stop All-American forward Jim Houston, who is averaging 21 points and seven rebounds a game for the Bruins this season.

Houston is the son of legendary assistant coach Wade Houston, now an assistant coach to Denny Crum at Louisville. Allan Houston will be a Cardinal next year.

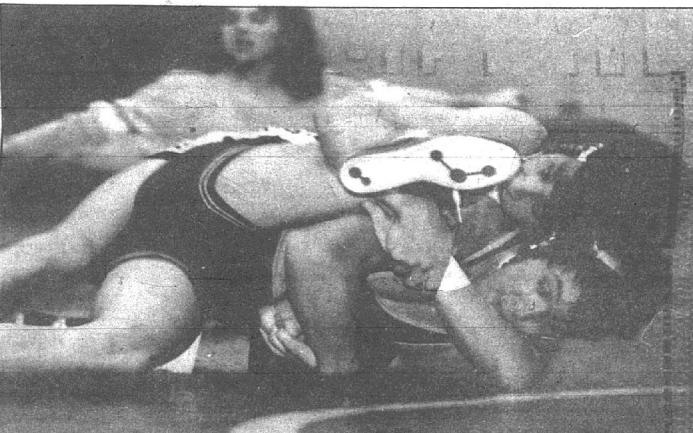

"We don't know that much about Houston, but since he is All-American we know that he'll be a handful for us," Lewis said.

Ballard, ranked 15th in USA Today's pre-season national ranking, will play in the same style of play as Lincoln, using a run-and-gun offense and a tough, pressure defense.

"This game will be a great measure for us to see where we are early in the year," said Bruin coach Scott Davenport, 66-9 in two seasons.

In the opening match of the night at 5:15, Lutheran North of St. Louis (24-4 this year) will battle Carlyle (26-6) in what promises to be a bruising game. Both schools won state football championships this fall.

(See SHOOTOUT, Page 3B)

BRYAN PRITCHETT (top) of the Warriors gains the advantage on Roxana's Bryan Smith during the 119-pound match on Friday at Roxana. Results of Friday's dual meet and Saturday's action in Peoria will appear in Wednesday's Journal.

WALT DISNEY PICTURES' continuing commitment to the production of family entertainment is headed by Roy E. Disney, right, vice chairman of the board and corporate officer, and Peter Schneider, senior vice president of production.

Roy Disney Jr. continuing vivid dreams of uncle Walt

By Frank Hunter
Staff Columnist

With his mustache and easy smile, Roy Disney Jr., 38-year-old nephew of Walt Disney, is a ringler for his late uncle.

These days he carries the title of vice chairman of the board and corporate officer of Walt Disney Pictures.

His fondest memories were the days he spent growing up among the Disney studio artists when his uncle, who died in 1966, was at the helm. That was known for its casual atmosphere and staff of unique creative personnel.

"The old-timers were crazy, and the younger ones still are," Disney said. "I drifted into the animation side of the business after editing scores of Disney nature films for television but I still don't know how animators can make a blank piece of paper come to life that comes to life on film, much less move."

By 1977, Disney grew frustrated at the company's direction and said, "We had to start going our own way in disengagement." But a few years later the stockholders put people together on the board of directors who agreed with the company's direction and became "cousins."

Disney took over the animation department because "I figured I was the only guy in the company who really knew how animators work during the creation of a film, along with writing and shooting it."

"For a while they would say, 'Walt would have wanted this, or Walt would have done it that way,' but we've changed that attitude."

I prefer the creative side because I'm not a dollars-and-cents guy. Walt wasn't either. He always spent everything he could get his hands on for a picture and I'd probably do the same thing given half a chance."

Now Disney doesn't fret over the cost of films Disney's Picture division produces. A recent Touchstone release is titled "The Good Mother," starring Diane Keaton, which deals with a divorced mother's initial relationship with her lover and a nasty custody fight for her 6-year-old daughter.

"Touchstone's releases don't carry the Disney name and people object have been warned not to go to the theaters," Disney said.

The Disney company is a huge enterprise with nearly 30,000 employees, half employed in France at Disney World and another 10,000 at studios at Disneyland in Anaheim, Calif.

Euro-Disneyland, the theme park halfway between De Gaulle and Orly airports in France, is slated to open in 1992.

"We are building four hotels and a golf course and the Disneyfication of the French culture is giving the intellectual fits," Disney said, with a chuckle.

He anticipated some chaos abroad deriving from cartoons and features that have been dubbed into all the European languages.

"Mickey Mouse in France doesn't necessarily sound like Mickey in Italy, Spain or Germany," Disney said. "Now we're going to be on Pan-European television eventually and we're trying to make Mickey sound like the same mouse in all those languages. It's a hell of a big job."

How would his impatience uncle assess the company's progress?

"He'd be very pleased," Disney said. "The Paris park should have been finished five years ago. Walt believed money existed to do things with and the more money there was the more things you could do in a hurry."

The Disney studio plan to release one new animated film a year in comparison to what it did during a five-year period the studio released "Snow White," "Bambi," "Pinocchio," "Fantasia" and "Dumbo."

"I found a reprint of the front page of the Hollywood Reporter of 50 years ago with a story announcing Walt Disney plans to release five new features a year based on the success of 'Snow White,'" Disney said. "I sent a copy off to Jeffrey Katzenberg with a note saying 'And you think we're ambitious!'"

Theaters can't fill several jobs during season

Dozens of jobs are going begging this Christmas season at movie theaters all over St. Louis.

All three major exhibitors report many unfilled positions for ushers, refreshment stand servers and ticket office employees.

The shortage is especially acute in west St. Louis County, where as many as 15 openings have been available at the Clarkson Cineplex.

The exhibitors seem to have no explanation for the openings. The jobs are available to people of all ages, not just teens.

Among holiday chestnuts fine classic 'Tenth Man'

By Mark Bretz
Upcoming TV

It's the season, in television land, for the annual avalanche of yuletide video treats.

There are, however, some stories airing this week that do not pertain to the holidays, should you be disposed to that warm fuzzy glow for a while.

KMOV-TV (Channel 4), for example, offers a fine, poignant drama at 8 p.m. today, when Anthony Hopkins stars in a Hallmark Hall of Fame remake of "The Tenth Man." Set in France during and shortly after World War II, the plot revolves around the efforts of a wealthy attorney to buy his way out of an execution by Nazi forces after he is sent by lot to be one of three prisoners executed out of 30 held captive — an execution of every 10th man.

While Chavel (Hopkins) is able to switch places with a poor prisoner who wins his newfound wealth to his impoverished minder and sister, the lawyer carries with him the memory of coward when the prison is liberated three years later. His efforts to build a new life take on a new irony when he migrates to America, his former estate and becomes an unneeded handyman for the two women he left him for, "cheating" their son and brother out of life.

"The Tenth Man" features the kind of improbable coincidence common in the Victorian novels of Charles Dickens. Still, Hopkins offers a strong performance as a man who is only able to truly express himself by not being himself if he wants to succeed, and Julia Duffy, who does that kind of role so well on the "Newhart Show."

More pertinent than a clock to this movie, though, is a telegraph, or maybe a telescope — you never know. And early on in the largely predictable story line, which features his poker buddies and her office cronies, as well as his officious, stuffy dementia, (played adroitly by Julia Duffy, who does that kind of role so well on the "Newhart Show").

Another sober drama shows up

Holiday concerts set for community bands

The Granite City Community Band will perform a free concert at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 7, at the Granite City High School auditorium.

The concert will be presented by the band in conjunction with the Collinsville Community Band and the Lewis and Clark Community College band.

In addition to the Dec. 7 date, the combined bands presented a concert Nov. 28 in Collinsville and will be performing a free concert Dec. 14 at Lewis and Clark College in Godfrey.

Directing the concert will be Joe Owens of Granite City, Jim Wilcox of Lewis and Clark, and Ned Gabel of Collinsville.

The Granite City Community Band is comprised of adult musicians from this area who enjoy playing concert band music.

Many are Granite City High School band alumni, but the president for band membership is previous concert band experience.

The band was first organized in September 1987 and plays several seasonal concerts a year.

Some instruments are available for rental to those who don't have their own.

The band practices every Saturday evening from 7 to 9 at the GCHS band room.

Persons interested in joining may attend the next regular rehearsal Jan. 4 or contact Joe Owens, band president Art Lavelle at 797-1124 or band director Art Morris at 797-6161. Brass section musicians are particularly needed, Owens said.

Seeing 'High Spirits' might lower your own

By Frank Hunter
Movie review

Some people fiddle with Ouija boards seeking their favorite spirits; others visit the bartender. And then there are the well-traveled folks who claim to have encountered ethereal types roaming Ireland's fabled castles.

Daryl Hannah and Liam Neeson star with Diane Keaton in "The Good Mother," a coming-of-age tale after World War II, the plot revolves around the efforts of a wealthy attorney to buy his way out of an execution by Nazi forces after he is sent by lot to be one of three prisoners executed out of 30 held captive — an execution of every 10th man.

Weekend Stretcher: You might think that with Dabney Coleman and James Cobain, the movie couldn't be all bad. And you'd be right. Unfortunately, Coleman and Cobain can't resuscitate the plodding, forlorn, prolonged made-for-TV "Maybe Baby," which ends at 9 p.m. Monday on KSDK-TV (Channel 5).

"Maybe Baby" tells the interminable story of a 35-year-old woman who decides to shake up the old household with the addition of a newborn, something her 57-year-old husband can't handle with two grown children from his late first wife, is less enthused about. Curtin's character essentially runs San Francisco's gay bar to a frigid marriage for the two women he has for "cheating" their son and brother out of life.

Hannah, playing a ghostly old woman who decides to shake up the old household with the addition of a newborn, something her 57-year-old husband can't handle with two grown children from his late first wife, is less enthused about. Curtin's character essentially runs San Francisco's gay bar to a frigid marriage for the two women he has for "cheating" their son and brother out of life.

The movie is owned by Peter Plunkett (Peter O'Toole), an eccentric, irresponsible, insouciant, half-drunk renegade member of Ireland's landed gentry.

Plunkett barely has been living in his horrendously expensive residence until converting it into a hotel and proclaiming it haunted, which is the Irish Tourist Board just fine.

But he is bungling the castle finances and gathering long dead ghosts who've occupied the place for two centuries. The ghosts finally take over, to the alarm of guests and staff.

If the dialogue and situations were really funny, "High Spirits" could have been a tautly suspenseful farce tinged with the wit of public television's "Fawlty Towers," the sitcom in which John Cleese ineptly runs a quaint hotel.

But the respectable cast of actors cannot levitate this lumpy hunk of devilmuch beyond the banal. Among the ill-used are Martin Ferrero as a dim-witted psychologist, Jennifer Tilly playing the bombshell Miranda, and Peter Gallagher as the hapless Brother Tony, whose gaunt scene finds him plunging into the castle moat.

Bonafide Irish actors serve as Castle Plunkett staff members and the spooky members of the court raised from the deep. By shoving bricks, exploding glasses of ale, whistling fish and spirits disappearing through walls.

"High Spirits" looks like it cost plenty. Too bad it didn't turn out better.

Rated PG-13 (language, mild violence). Running time: 96 minutes.
